

MAR 4 '22 ✓ "PARDON ME" ✓ -- By Hal E. Roach. ©CIL 17598C
Pollard appears as a sentimental chap who would marry Marie, the daughter of the Governor, if she was not so practical as to expect him to go to work. The village bank is robbed and Marie's diamonds are stolen along with valuable prescriptions belonging to the Governor. The Bank President is frantic and calls to tell Marie. Finding her with "Snub", he informs the girl of the robbery, and both of them fear the wrath of the Governor. The president tells her that the thief has been jailed and suggests that someone be put in the same cell with him to attempt to discover where the "swag" is hidden.

Pollard starts out immediately to be the hero and go to jail, first exacting a promise that the Bank President and Marie will get him out as soon as he finds the loot. Comedy moments without number follow, as everything "Snub" does in the way of a crime turns out to be a heroic act and he is rewarded instead of being punished. He is about to give up all hope when he is arrested on a charge for which he is not to blame. Pollard is placed in the same cell with the robber and soon finds out the hiding place of the loot only to get in touch with the banker and discover that he has left for Europe. Uproarious situations follow, leading to a surprising climax.

---

This document is from the Library of Congress
“Motion Picture Copyright Descriptions Collection, 1912-1977”

Collections Summary:

The Motion Picture Copyright Descriptions Collection, Class L and Class M, consists of forms, abstracts, plot summaries, dialogue and continuity scripts, press kits, publicity and other material, submitted for the purpose of enabling descriptive cataloging for motion picture photoplays registered with the United States Copyright Office under Class L and Class M from 1912-1977.

Class L Finding Aid:

<https://hdl.loc.gov/loc.mbrsmi/eadmbrsmi.mi020004>

Class M Finding Aid:

<https://hdl.loc.gov/loc.mbrsmi/eadmbrsmi.mi021002>

National Audio-Visual Conservation Center
The Library of Congress